airport engineering

Specialist technical advice, design, evaluation and project management of airfield pavement construction and maintenance and of associated infrastructure.

Capita Symonds has a wealth of experience in airfield paving works and the associated services and infrastructure, for both civil and military airports. We offer a comprehensive consultancy service, covering all aspects of planning, designing and implementing airport development, together with maintenance inspections and advice.

The design and maintenance of the aircraft pavements form the basis of any airport development. It is therefore crucial that projects are carefully considered, planned, designed and implemented with due regard for their commercial and operational impacts, including safety. We understand the time and financial constraints of projects in both the public and private sector, and offer a practical and cost effective service focussed on providing value for money solutions to our clients. We have established relationships with specialists in aeronautical ground lighting and ground power, enabling close integration with these key disciplines.

In addition to design, we specialise in the project management of airfield pavement construction works, including contract management and cost management.
