Director of Leisure Safety

Capita Symonds

Richard is Director of Leisure Safety for Capita Symonds. He has over 20 years experience as an Environmental Health Officer enforcing all aspects of health and safety. He specialises in Leisure Safety and is recognised as a leading authority in this field. He chaired a National Working Party for the Health and Safety Executive on pop concert safety and was the main driving force of the guide to 'Health, Safety and Welfare at Pop Concerts and Similar Events'. He sits on the industry steering group on entertainment safety and is the President of the National Outdoor Events Association. Previously as an Environmental Health Officer he headed departments concerned with health and safety, atmospheric pollution, noise, housing, food hygiene and infectious disease control. This background has been particularly useful in the undertaking of litigation work.

He has a reputation of making health and safety fun and, in particular, is using risk assessment to enhance the creativity and innovation of events.
